Accreditation Extended for Orfalea College of Business

The Orfalea College of Business received an extended accreditation after a rigorous external review of its mission, faculty qualifications, curricula and ability to provide the highest-quality programs. AACSB International extended the college's accreditation for another five years. For over a century, AACSB accreditation has represented the highest standard of quality in business education. Fewer than 6% of the business schools in the world receive AACSB accreditation. The AACSB review team, composed of deans from peer business schools, engaged in a comprehensive, continuous improvement review process that reaffirmed the quality and effectiveness of the college's degree programs, co-curricular programs and career-readiness outcomes. Dean Damon Fleming said the successful review process exemplifies the collective effort of the college. "The Orfalea College of Business is a transformational leader in experiential business education," he said. "I am grateful to all the faculty, staff, students, alumni and advisory council members who participated in the comprehensive review. It is a testament to the dedication and shared vision of all Orfalea stakeholders."

Support Feed Cal Poly During Annual Poly Gives

Poly Gives is a day when alumni, parents and friends give back to the Cal Poly they love. Feed Cal Poly makes it easy for all community members to participate by helping combat food insecurity on campus. The Feed Cal Poly website (<https://calpolydining.com/nutrition/food-insecurity/feed-cal-poly>) makes donating quick, easy and accessible, with no limit on donation size. Students with dining memberships also have the option to donate unused dining dollars through the Mustang Meal Share Program at <https://calpolydining.com/nutrition/food-insecurity/mustang-meal-share>. All donors will receive a receipt for tax purposes.

Nominations Open for the 2023 LEAD Awards

The LEAD Awards recognize students, student organizations, programs and events in Student Affairs. This collaborative awards ceremony honors the following pillars: Leadership, engagement, advocacy and distinction. The LEAD Awards are geared toward celebrating the outstanding efforts on campus and are given to students or student organizations based on three categories: leadership, engagement and distinction. Students can nominate themselves or others. Additionally, nominations can be submitted for the Advocate Award, which recognizes Cal Poly faculty/staff or offices/departments that are allies for students, programs or events, organizations and beyond. Submit a nomination at <https://now.calpoly.edu/submitter/form/start/583724>.

Cal Poly Corporation Makes Move to Enhance Campus Dining Experience

To continue to enhance the student experience, Cal Poly Corporation is expanding its current partnership with Chartwells Higher Education that will bring additional resources to Campus Dining starting July 1. The expanded partnership will offer access to new systems and industry expertise, as well as financial support that will further the success of the Campus Dining program. Chartwells' increasing partnership creates a new model to maintain an affordable dining program as the campus grows. While Chartwells will provide daily management, the Corporation will continue to lead the short- and long-term program decisions and the development of master plans. Campus Dining staff, including students, will keep their current positions as Chartwells employees and will continue to receive competitive wages and more choices in their new benefits packages.

Compass Group, Chartwells' parent company, was ranked in Forbes 2022 Best Employers for Diversity and Newsweek's America's Greatest Workplaces for Diversity in 2023. Chartwells has worked with the Corporation since 2017, when it was contracted to provide management and consulting services for dining operations.

Celebrate Community Impact with Campus Dining

On Friday, April 14, Campus Dining will join over 300 college campuses to host "Power-Ful," a nationwide event to recognize individuals' power and potential to create a positive impact in their community. Power-Ful will be celebrated at Vista Grande from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. The event, which coincides with Open House, will feature fresh Poly Produce; samples and giveaways from Campus Dining partners, a photobooth to capture the memories; and much more.
